Morgan Rooy has lived in the Central Michigan area her entire life. She is a graduate of Central Michigan University and is currently working on her Masters in Social Work from Western Michigan University. Upon graduation, her specializations will include Trauma Across the Lifespan and Integrative Holistic Health and Wellness. Morgan was an intern with Child Advocacy in 2010, and has completed her first MSW internship within our Children's Advocacy Center. Her final internship will be with Family and Children Services in Midland where she will be working within the schools providing counseling services to students. As the CAN Program Director, she oversees the child abuse and neglect prevention programming, as well as implements Stewards of Children and body safety education trainings, manages the Baby Pantry, teaches parent education classes, and more. Morgan also serves as a board member for 211 Northeast Michigan and the Gratiot-Isabella Great Start Collaborative.
